Rationale

About half the full-time students who attend Concordia rely on one form or another of financial assistance, in most cases, a student loan. Concordia's Financial Aid and Awards Office has determined that for students who apply for University bursaries, the average gap between the direct education and living expenses and students' revenues is $3,180. In other words, students not only incur debt throughout their studies, but they experience considerable hardship in order to meet current expenses.

Still, for many, it's a desperate situation. It's hard to see promising students leave the Financial Aid and Awards Office empty-handed since we would all want to see students succeed in their educational undertakings.

The objective

The objective The fundamental objective of the Concordia University Golf Classic is to raise over $100,000 towards entrance & in-course bursaries to assist financially needy Concordia students to pursue their academic goals.
